

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFATORY DEDICATION.

TO

CHIEF REGISTRAR OF THE LONDON COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

IT is now, as you know, some four and twenty years since I first entered on my bibliographical career. You entertained grave misgivings as to the prudence of the step; and I now have no hesitation in confessing, that of the magnitude of the enterprise which I was proposing to myself, I was lamentably ignorant. But I had formed my resolution, and nothing could deter me. Eight or nine years elapsed in the accumulation of material for a New Bibliography of Early English Literature; I matured my plan carefully and thoughtfully; no collection of books, public or private, large or small, fell in my way without increasing my stores and at the same time sharpening my appetite; and, at length, in 1867, I felt justified in sending what I had so far done to the Printer. The volume then published is tolerably familiar nowadays to all interested in such matters under the denomination of HAZLITT'S HANDBOOK; it is a thick octavo of 714 pages, in two columns, and supplies descriptions of about 10,000 articles, as far as possible from the originals.

This book of mine, at present fifteen years' old, I must say that I continue to regard without shame and without regret. I see its shortcomings and its weaknesses; but such drawbacks are incidental to every mortal undertaking, superlatively so to one where minutiae govern, and where of the numerous constituent atoms so many are obscured from the view or placed above the reach of an investigator like myself.

A very marked proportion of the HANDBOOK of 1867, indeed, consisted of titles and collations drawn from the fountain-head, and after all deductions the residuum of sound matter was creditably large.

Still I felt sorry that I had permitted my work to be leavened to any extent whatever with second-hand ware; and I made up my mind to a New Departure. Perceiving that the policy by which I had adopted information from other works was false, and that progress made in that way was worse than specious, I resolved thenceforward to construct my bibliographical edifice on the only sure and enduring foundation—to catalogue each book with the book under my eyes. Another interval of nine years followed; however, before I submitted to the public the result of my new doctrine and experiment. The First Series of BIBLIOGRAPHICAL COLLECTIONS AND NOTES, a volume of 500 pages, in two-column form, was printed in 1876.

This, my second, progeny of the kind, was a fusion of old faulty titles and collations redone with a large mass of fresh gatherings, the fruit of many a weary day's, and week's, and month's literary research, coupled with sheer manual toil. Sometimes the labour grew so irksome and so exhausting, from the frequency of sales and the apparently endless deluge of books and tracts, that I thought of abandoning my self-imposed task; for I had, it must be understood, not only substituted my old mode of treatment for another more healthy and more solid, but I had had the courage or temerity to set back the narrow limits of the original scheme of 1867, and to transform a Monograph into a Cyclopædia. The HANDBOOK professed to confine itself to certain sections of our early literature; but the BIBLIOGRAPHICAL COLLECTIONS manifested the far more ambitious and formidable design of embracing the whole of it, except such commodities as mere sermons and the technicalities of controversial theology.

It may be freely allowed that my undertaking was, in its inception, too limited and too special, and appealed to a too select circle of enthusiasts. But in the Bibliographical Collections of 1876, I turned my back completely on the errors of my apprenticeship, and whatever verdict may be delivered on my revised project, the merit and the praise due to comprehensive breadth must not, I think, be withheld from it. Between 1867, the birth-year of the Handbook, and 1876, that of the Bibliographical Collections and Notes, an increasing ardour for the pursuit which I had made so much my own, tempted me to wander into other fields; and the dispersion of a series of valuable private libraries, year by year, kept my pen busy, and enlarged insensibly the scope and volume of my labours. From aspiring at first to gather into my hands an account of such works only as belonged to Early English poetry and folklore, I became by degrees the possessor of an imposing and proud assemblage of Descriptive Notes, comprising (so far as our own literature goes) every branch of human learning, and all the shades and forms which speculation and thought have taken through ages.

Among the collections which the hammer has dissolved since 1867 may be enumerated those formed by Mr. George Smith, of White-chapel, rich in Old English Miscellanies; the Rev. Thomas Corser, especially distinguished by its profuse wealth in our Early Poetry; Mr. Kershaw, rich in Plays; Dr. Rimbault, both in them and in Music; Dr. David Laing, unexampled in its almost inexhaustible mine of Scottish Literary Antiquities; Mr. Way, very useful to me for a few undescribed items; Mr. Comerford, surpassing all recent auctions in the department of English Topography; the Duke of Marlborough; and a host of miscellaneous dispersions. Nor should I overlook the very serviceable legacies to South Kensington in this interval of the libraries of Dyce and Forster; and I also made a second inspection of the Grenville and Lambeth Palace treasures. But all our libraries, public and private, are so imperfect, even collectors of strict specialities never meeting with certain items, that, in order to secure even an approach to completeness, one is obliged to resort to a process of amalgamation. For example, no person or institution can at present boast that he or it possesses an unbroken series of the original editions of Shakespear.

Immense gain has, doubtless, accrued from the periodical scattering of bibliographical hoards, as well as from the propensity of individuals to collect on particular lines—the narrower those lines, the better for me. The large stores formed by Bliss, Bandinel, Mitford, Tyrrel the City Remembrancer, Daniel of Canonbury, and others, were of signal service to me in their time. Many articles, I found, were of little interest or importance in themselves; but they acquired value by aggregation, and by being grouped and classified under subjects or localities. Union est la Force.

My design, in fact, in its more catholic aspect, as it presents itself in the Bibliographical Collections and Notes, 1876, exhausts nearly the entire domain of literature and science. The succeeding pages only follow the precedent of the FIRST SERIES in dealing with the under-mentioned subjects:—

The observations which I have here taken occasion to make have a common bearing on the Bibliographical Collections and Notes of 1876 and on the present volume, in which the same principle and aim have ruled me. The two books comprehend about 16,000 separate entries, gathered together at intervals from a great variety of sources, and often under difficult circumstances, but, I hope, in all cases with fidelity and success; and if to these we add 5000 for the portion of the Handbook of 1867, catalogued on the same plan, and therefore presumably of permanent worth, we arrive at a total of 21,000 orthodox titles. These will strike any person of experience as rather big figures. No volumes, indeed, in our own language, or probably in any other, afford an equal body of information on what in any country should be considered a subject of national dignity and concernment.

The NOTES will be found tolerably plentiful. They are, as a rule, relevant merely to the subject-matter of the particular work to which they are appended, but occasionally they illustrate the life of the author, or refer to some interesting point connected with another book by him. They have not been drawn up without very considerable trouble, and they ought, perhaps, to assist in dispelling the common illusion that a bibliographer is very little more than a mechanical transcriber. How few things, on the contrary, he ought not to know, if his functions are to be satisfactorily performed!

In conclusion, I shall do myself the pleasure to thank those who have most materially helped me: Mr. Henry Pyne, Mr. Furnivall, Mr. Richard Garnett of the British Museum, Mr. Aldis Wright, Mr. Christie-Miller, Mr. Alfred Wallis of Derby, Mr. Frederick Locker, my Publisher who invariably lets me see any book which he has bought, and the eminent auctioneers Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson, and Hodge, whose liberality and kindness this is not my first opportunity of commemorating.

In the Douce Collection occurs a mutilated copy of some early unidentified impression of the version printed by Caxton ; Mr. Douce ascribed it to William Middleton's press, but there is no certainty. Lord Ashburnham's catalogue mentions a copy of Caxton's version of the English Æsop, printed by W. Powell, 8vo, 1551.

A new name in our poetical annals seems to be ANTHONY ROUS, who executed a metrical version of the Æsopian series of fables not known to exist in print, but preserved in a 4to MS. of the early part of the seventeenth century, which was sold by auction in 1872.

The earliest specimens of the application of the Æsopian fables in English art (if that can be so called) are to be seen in the Bayeux tapestry.

With plates and maps.

"The first Atlas of Scotland is contained in this celebrated compilation, and owes its existence to the exertions of Sir John Scot, of Scotstarvet. Not only did he contribute a great amount of information to the text, and pay for the engraving of the plates and their revision by Scottish Geographers, Robert Gordon and his son, but to enrich the work, he tried a plan which met with more success 150 years later. The Synod of Scotland was prevailed upon to request the Ministers to each supply a description of their several parishes. 'Mais cette ordonnance, n'estant accompagnée ny de prix ny de punition, pour accourager à y obeir, elle a esté négligée par la plus grand' part d'eux.' Amongst those who did reply was a Mr. Lauder."—*Quaritch's

Printed at London for Richard Redmer, and are to be sold at his shop at the West end of Saint Pauls Church. 1619. 12°.

After the poem by Patrick Hannay occurs a new titlepage, "The Description of a good Wife: or, a rare one amongst Women. At London printed for Richard Redmer, and are to be sold at his shop at the West end of Saint Pauls Church. 1619." The Argument is given in verse, and followed by "a good Wife," which Mr. Park praises for "perspicuity of design" and "harmony of metre" in an article containing a specimen of the poem given in Cens. Lit. vol. v. p. 369. The part by Hannay concludes with first leaf of sign. C, then the new title, which, as well as the next two leaves, are without signature, completing sheet C, but the fourth leaf has sign. B, and the alphabet continues regular through the volume. The Happy Husband was reprinted in 1622. See Censura Literaria, vol. v. p. 371.

CALVER, EDWARD.

Passion and Discretion, in Youth, and Age.

Here in a plaine, and most familiar kinde
You may behold a Combat in the minde ;
Mans differing motions are the jar in question,
The Combatants are Passion and Discretion :
Each striving to be chiefe in the desire.
Or, if you please to straine it any higher,
Then here you, partly, may behold the strife
Betweene the Flesh, and Spirit in this Life.

The Obstinate Lady, . . . 1657.

Mr. Wallis of Derby observes to me:

"There is a Derbyshire tradition that Jaques, the serving man, is a 'sketch from nature,' from the Ashborne district.

"See the preface to the 'Poems' of the same author for an angry exposure of 'Mr. William Godbid' for printing the 'Obstinate Lady' (as above) without the author's sanction. The concluding ten lines (ed. 1657) are spurious:—'And though that Comedy,' says Cokain, 'be very much of it writ in number, he [Godbid] put it forth as if the most part of it were prose.' Maidment and Logan have not noted a third of the variations occurring in the subsequent editions."

Each part has a separate title.

CONSCIENCE.

The Remorse of Conscience. A poem. W. de Worde. 4°.

Besides the three copies specified in the Handbook, 1867, p. 119, a fourth, wanting the title-leaf, was sold among Heber's books, and is now, I believe, in the possession of Mr. Fuller Russell. Owing to the deficiency named, it was inserted in the Heber Catalogue, and in the Handbook also, as an independent piece called The Communication between God and Man, which occurs as the title in the colophon. Compare Handbook ubi suprd.

The Heber copy came from Lincoln Cathedral.

This production appears to be the work of William Lichfield, Parson of All Hallows, Thames Street, who died in 1447.

In one of the Martin Marprelate tracts, reprinted in 1640. Sign. B 3, the writer charges Cooper with merely taking portions of the Thesaurus of Robert Stephens, and tacking them on to Eliot. As to the Thesaurus itself, it seems to have been thought at the time that it was compiled by one Rauçonnet, a poor hackney author.

Hic incipit Fructus temporis [This occurs, as in Notary's impression of 1504, on a i verso, col. 2. The colophon is :] Enprynted at Londō in powlys chyrche yarde at the west dore of powlys besyde my lorde of londons palays by me Julyan Notary ✠. In the yere of our lorde god. m.cccc.xv. Folio, black letter, printed in two columns. Collation : ✠, 4 leaves, occupied with woodcuts on the first and last pages, the rest with the Table : a—z in sixes : 4, 4 leaves. Grenv. Coll.

Neither the Grenville copy nor that in the General Library at the Museum has the Description of Britain, which is equally absent in a third at present in Mr. Quaritch's possession. But Herbert (edit. of Ames, pp. 306-7) appears to have seen one which possessed it.

The cuts in this edition vary from those in that of 1504. Their insertion was probably quite accidental, and, as in the case of the Holinshed of 1577, they have no special fitness.

Certain Causes gathered together . . . [1549.]

FREART, ROLAND, Sieur de Chambray.

A Parallel of the Antient Architecture with the Modern, In a Collection of Ten Principal Authors who have written upon the Five Orders, . . . The three Greek Orders, Dorique, Ionique, and Corinthian, comprise the First Part of this Treatise. And the two Latine, Tuscan and Composita the Latter. Written in French by Roland Freart, Sieur de Chambray ; Made English for the Benefit of Builders. To which is added an Account of Architects and Architecture, in an Historical and Etymological Explanation of certain Teerms particularly affected by Architects. With Leon Baptista Alberti's Treatise of Statues. By John Evelyn Esq; . . . London, Printed by Tho. Roycroft, for John Place, . . . MDCLXIV. Folio. Imprimatur, 1 leaf: Frontispiece, 1 leaf: a—b 2 in fours: A, 4 leaves: B—C in twos: D—Y in fours. Dedicated by Evelyn (1) to Charles II., and (2) to Sir John Denham. With numerous engravings worked with the text.

Evelyn's dedication to the King, dated from Sayes-Court, Aug. 20, 1664, is interesting, though rather too courtly. That to Denham discloses the fact that this book had been commenced ten years before, and laid aside without any thought of resumption, had not Evelyn's friend, Mr. Hugh May, encouraged him to proceed by procuring an accurate edition of the plates. It seems, however, that it was the King who gave Evelyn the first notion. The account of Architects and Architecture, occupying 28 pages, is from Evelyn's own pen, and in truth the whole book is rather an "interpretation" than a mere version of the French.

An Idea of the Perfection of Painting: Demonstrated from the Principles of Art, and by Examples, conformable to the Observations, which Pliny and Quintilian have made upon the most celebrated Pieces of the Ancient Painters, Parallel'd with some Works of the most famous Modern Painters . . . rendred English by J. A rather particular description of this hitherto unrecorded Southwark edition may be acceptable. The copy was brought under my notice by Mr. John Bohn at Sotheby's, April 15, 1880. It seems to vary in arrangement from the later issues.

The title is within a border of pieces, the lower portion beneath the particulars given above being occupied by Wolsey's arms; the reverse is blank. On A 2 occurs: Ad Lectorem, a set of Latin hexameters and pentameters, followed on the reverse by Wolsey's preface, dated Aug. 1, 1528. The Methodus fills the four next pages. On B i recto come the Rules, succeeded by the Articles of Faith, Precepts of Living, the Apostles' Creed, the Lord's Prayer, &c. On Ci recto we get An Introduction of the parts of Speaking, which extends to G 4 recto. The last division consists of Lily's Rudiments, except some verses by him De Moribus, &c., on the last four pages. A good deal of the book is in English.

HAWKINS, FRANCIS.

Youths Behaviour. . . . 1663-4.

"The second part," as Mr. Wallis of Derby observes to me, "appears to be, in comparison with the first part, an entirely new work, written by Robert Codrington, M.A. who, if the title may be trusted, was associated with Sir Thomas Hawkins in translating the Holy Court of Nic. Caussin. In his dedication to 'Mistress Ellinor Par-gites,' and 'Mrs. Elizabeth Washington, her only daughter,' &c., he hopes this 'will prove as profitable as I have found it difficult; for although there are extant in Greek and other languages many excellent books concerning the institution of youth, yet I never have read any that have precisely treated of the education of gentlewomen.' In the bookseller's 'Advertisement to the Reader,' he says that he acquainted himself with 'a gentleman of knowledge and learning to whom I gave certain heads in relation to the whole subject, who did take the pains to draw them up into so many chapters, which I here present to the publick view, to be either annexed to the former book of 'Youth's Behaviour,' or to be sold by itself.' He adds, 'The price of both together is two shillings; if you buy them by themselves, the one is sixpence, and the other eighteen pence.'

"As a point of criticism, the second part is a piece of mere bookmaking, quite devoid of the raciness of the first; but the collection of Select Proverbs should be compared with Ray."

HAWKINS, HENRY.

Parthenia Sacra. . . . 1633.

In connection with the apparently careless style of the MS. inscription in the copy cited by me, it may be pointed out that the orthography of those days was lax and uncertain. Pepys (5th Sept. 1664) calls the ship Henrietta "the Heneretta."

HAWKINS, SIR RICHARD.

HUSBAND.

The Husband, a poem . . . 1614.

This volume commences with a dedicatory prose epistle "To his Truly Honored Friend, M. Anth: Croftes," and another "Epistle to the Reader," in which the author requests he may not be condemned as an imitator, "though indeed the worke precedent, and worke-master, were both alike excellent." Commendatory verses now follow by Ben Jonson (which do not appear in collections of his works)—I. O.—Ra: Wym.—Io. Calue: ex inter: Temp.—A. H. ex Temp: Med.—Philomus: ex Graii: Hospi:—R. V. (in Latin).—M. Freeman, and "The Author to his preefix'd Approuers."

The author of this volume is not known, but from the circumstance of three of his friendly eulogists signing their verses as residents in the Inner and Middle Temple and Gray's Inn, it is extremely probable that the law was his profession.—The popularity of Sir Thomas Overbury's "Wife" evidently gave rise to this poem, of which the present copy is believed, with good reason, to be the only one existing—it is that which was in the libraries of Major Pearson, Mr. Stevens, and Mr. Woodhouse.—Bibliotheca Anglo-Poetica.

This completed (with the exception of the Case is Altered and the New Inn, not yet published in folio) the collection of Jonson's dramatic and other writings. It was printed without any general title-page, although that belonging to the folio of 1640 is occasionally inserted in front of it. In fact, the three portions of the poet's works here described should properly form one volume, 1616-31-40-1.

The additional leaves under signatures A—C 2 carry down the narrative to the beginning of Elisabeth. On the back of the title is an Admonition to the Reader, warning him against the piratical edition of 1559, printed by Marsh.

Coopers Chronicle Conteyning the whole discourse. . . Newly enlarged and augmented, aswel in the first part with diuers profitable Histories, as in the later two, with the whole summe of those thyngs, that Paulus Jouius and Sleidane hath written of late yeaeres, that is now lately ouerseene, and with great diligence corrected and augmented, vnto the .vii. yeaere of the reigne of our most gracious Queene Elisabeth, that now is. Anno Domini. 1565. xx. die Mens. Aprill. No place or printer's name, black letter. a, 6 leaves: B, 2 leaves: c—d in eights: e, 6 leaves: A—Zz in eights: A, 8 leaves: B, 4 leaves: no C: D, 4 leaves.

Four titlepages were printed to this fourth edition of the work, and the preliminary leaves were also republished with variations. In three of these issues now before me the “Admonition” occurs on the back of the title, but in a fourth it is omitted. Changes were likewise introduced into the ending leaves, the body of the volume remaining the same. Two of the 1565 issues are dated August 1, one April 20, and the other has only the year.

There is little or no doubt that, as in the case of Halle's Chronicle, copies were made up at the time.

Our Noses should be Spectacled to make's see better,

And read our troubles in a larger Letter :

Now Gentlemen take it not in disgrace,

If I do put your Spectacles in a Case ;

For if they fall, you'l breake them ten to one,

And then you must buy new of Turlington :

As for the hornes they'l serve for nothing after,

But to show Fenton's fortune and more laughter.

Both well preserv'd help our dim purblind eyes

To see afresh our printed miseries.

LUCANUS, M. A.

Lvcans Pharsalia . . . Englished by Thomas May . . . 1627.

A dedication was originally attached to each book, except the last which, as there is no gap in the signatures, seems never to have had one. In a copy before me there are the nine following dedications:—1. William Earl of Devonshire (preceding the work); 2. William Earl of Pembroke; 3. Edward Earl of Mowbray; 4. Robert Earl of Essex and Ewe; 5. Robert Earl of Lindsey; 6. William Earl of Devon; 7. Sir Horatio Vere, Baron of Tilbury; 8. Theophilus Earl of Lincoln; 9. Robert Earl of Warwick. All are in verse, except the first.

Lvcans Pharsalia: . . . The fourth Edition, corrected, and the Annotations enlarged by the Author. London, Printed by William Bentley, for William Shears. . . . 1650. 12°, A—M 6 in twelves, the first leaf occupied by a bust of Lucan engraved by Crossa. Dedicated to the Earl of Devonshire.

Lvcans Pharsalia . . . London, Printed for William Shears . . . 1659. 8°. A, 8 leaves, the first having the description of the frontispiece: A—T 2 in eights.

The copy here employed had not the engraved titles, though it possessed the two descriptions of them in verse. It had the bust of Lucan from the same plate as in the edition of 1650.

A Continuation of Lvcans Historical Poem till the Death of Ivlivs Cæsar . . . Printed for William Sheares . . . 1650. 12°. A, 6 leaves, besides the engraved title: B—F in twelves, last leaf blank. Dedicated to the King (as before).

LUCRETIVS CARUS, T.

An Essay on the First Book of T. Lucretius Carus De Rerum Natura. Interpreted and made English verse by J: Evelyn Esq; [Quot. from Ovid Amor.] London: Printed for Gabriel Bedle, and Thomas Collins . . . 1656. 8°, A—M in eights, last two leaves blank. With a frontispiece by W. Hollar from a design by Mrs. Evelyn.

With complimentary verses by Sir Richard Browne, Edmund Waller, Christopher Wase, and a letter from the translator's relative, Sir Richard Fanshawe, dated from Tankersley, 27 Dec. 1653. The copious notes at the end are introduced by an explanation by one of the publishers, who says that it was Evelyn's desire that they should be suppressed altogether, but that (partly because the printer thought the volume too small without them) he had taken the responsibility of inserting them. Evelyn's reason, perhaps, was that the "Animadversions," as they are called, were of a cast which might be unpalatable to his clerical friends.

T. Lucretius Carus the Epicurean Philosopher, His Six Books De Natura Rerum. Done into English Verse, with Notes. . . Oxford, Printed by L. Lichfield, Printer to the University for Anthony Stephens Bookseller near the Theatre 1682. 8°. D. Laing, December, 1879, No. 1872.

It is to be remarked that the editions of Lyndsay after 1568 are of very slight critical value, and even in that of 1668, of which Lord Mostyn has a copy, there are corruptions and alterations, always for the worse. The Anglicised version printed in 1566 (and afterwards) is of course almost worthless; it would have been, perhaps, more curious, if the publisher had issued it, as he apparently intended originally to do, in English and Scottish; but he only gave the former, and indeed in all the later Scottish editions of the poet many Anglicisms are interpolated.

The 1568 impression is not, strictly speaking, a collected edition of the Poet at all, as it contains very little not found in those of Jascuy and Scot. Those which came after it are all said to be "newly corrected and augmented;" but each is more inaccurate, corrupt, and good-for-nothing than its predecessor.

"Very rare. Lowndes only mentions the English Translation. Monteth's Father was a Salmon Fisher in Stirling Borough Meadow, and when he found that without a territorial handle to his name he could not get entrance into the higher circles or obtain the situation under Government offered him by Cardinal Richelieu, he adopted Salmonet as his title. This anecdote W. Anderson in his Scottish Nation has vainly attempted to prove incorrect by stating there was ONCE a place in Stirlingshire called Salmonet, but has neglected to point out its present site."—Note in David Laing's Catalogue.

In a second copy before me the date on the frontispiece has been altered to 1637, and a small map of Virginia, with C. R. and the Royal Arms of England, engraved by Ralph Hall in 1636, has been added.

Though this is called on the engraved title Second Edition, and the imprint varies, it is in all other respects identical with the copies of 1635.

MERCHANTS.

The booke of merchants. . . . 1547.

This is, it seems, a translation from Le Livre des marchés, a satire originally published in 1533, and of which a copy is preserved in the public library at Zurich. Brunet (last edit. iii. 1124) notices later editions.

Referring to the first edition of Neufchatel, 1533, Brunet observes that the knowledge of Rabelais's Pantagruel probably induced the author to make Sir Pantapole, the supposed writer's nom de plume, "prochain voyain du seigneur Pantagruel;" but in the subsequent impressions this was omitted as unpalatable to the licensing authorities.

NORTHUMBERLAND, ROBERT DUDLEY, Duke of.

Dell' Arcano Del Mare di D. Rvberto Dvdleo Dvca di Northvmbria, e Conte di Warwick, Libri Sei; . . . In Firenze, . . . 1646-7. Folio. 2 vols. With diagrams and charts.

Arcano del Mare . . . Impressione Seconda. Corretta, & accresciuta, . . . In Fiorenza, MDCLXI. . . . Folio. 2 vols. With diagrams, &c.

This great work is of singular importance to the American collector. The Maps and Charts, which it contains, are all the result of long and profound study, and judicious criticism. Dudley was himself a practical mariner and scientific man, as well as a great noble, who spent forty years of his life, and the treasures of a vast income, upon the accumulation of authentic material for the illustration of his cherished subjects—Hydrography and Navigation. The Arcano comprises Portolani and Charts by English and other pilots, which were never published elsewhere; and it seems curious that the book should have hitherto escaped the notice of most American collectors, when we consider some of its points of interest. The maps which depict Virginia, New Netherlands, and New England, are amongst the most important of these: they are fuller and upon a larger scale than, while at the same time, they are totally distinct from, those of Laet, Jansson, Mercator, Visscher, the Beschryving of 1651, Van Loon, and Donckers. It is very strange, upon this account, that the Arcano is omitted by Asher in his Biographical Essay, and that the attention of so painstaking a student should not have been drawn to Dudley's work. The above second edition was prepared from the author's corrected copy of the first; and as he died in 1639, his maps of those parts of America must be considered to take precedence of all those mentioned by Asher, except the 1630 edition of Laet. In fact, it is uncertain whether they might not claim priority even over Laet; for the engraver Lucini mentions that he himself had been kept secluded in an obscure village of Tuscany for twelve years, working incessantly at the plates. Asher's Essay, so elaborate in its description of the various early maps and charts, their variations, and their mutual dependence or independence, becomes very defective through its omission of the Arcano. Again the large scale of the maps of California and New Albion, and the number of names which crowd the coast line below and above Cape Mendocino, with the marginal observation upon the errors of latitude made by previous writers, show conclusively the scientific character and importance of Dudley's work. A similar remark will apply to the delineations of the newly discovered lands of Australia, and the northern coasts of New Holland (which he mistakenly calls New Guinea, while leaving to that island its other name Papua).

One of the Portolans is by Abraham Kendal, the master of Dudley's flag-ship, when the latter (just before Raleigh made his similar attempt) fitted out an expedition in 1594-95 to explore the land of Eldorado; during which he visited Trinidad and some other islands, Guyana, the issues of the Orinoco, &c. He took some useful notes, made lists of native words, thrashed some Spanish ships, and escaped some great dangers in this expedition, a daring one for a young man of 21—but returned without booty. The numerous Vocabularies of savage languages which the Arcano contains are of considerable interest. Abraham Kendal, whose name is unknown to the book-makers, died at Portobello, in Central America, in 1597, in Drake's service, leaving behind him the plans and papers of which Dudley made good use.

Dudley was the legitimate son of the Earl of Leicester, and acknowledged as such during his father's life, but the hatred of his step-mother and the enmity which his aspiring and ambitious character created for him, damaged his prospects at court. He claimed the Dukedom of Northumberland, which had fallen into abeyance on the execution of his grandfather, the setter-up of Queen Jane Gray; but soon left England (where he was more likely to receive indignities than rewards), and went to travel on the Continent, from which he never returned. He obtained, however, from the Grand Duke of Tuscany honours and employment; and received from Ferdinand II. a patent by which the title of Duke of Northumberland and Earl of Warwick was secured to himself and his children throughout the Empire, with the title of Duchess for the lady he took with him from England and married in Italy. Charles I. conferred the same title upon the wife whom Dudley had left with four children in England behind him.—Note in Quaritch's Catalogue.

The Letting of Hymovrs Blood . . . 1600.

Of the three copies in the Bodleian, one exhibits a text corrected in some places. See Mr. Smith's Preface to the Hunterian Club edition of the Works. The Malone copy wants A 3, while the Crynes copy has a leaf of verses to the author's friend, Master Hugh Lee, not in the other two.

A Theatre of Delightful Recreation . . . 1605.

This is, no doubt, the work licensed to Arthur Johnson, 8 October, 1605, as A Theatre of divine Recreation, &c. See Arber, iii. 303.

The History of Guy Earl of Warwick [1608.]

As this piece was not registered till the 23rd June, 1608, by W. Ferbrand, it is not likely to have been printed till that year. The Hunterian Club, in their reprint, adduced an edition of 1607, printed by Elizabeth Allde, in the British Museum. But that copy is dated 1632, and indeed Elizabeth Allde issued nothing before 1628. Some one has dated the book 1607 in MS. on the title, although 1632 is at the end.

This is much more complete than the earlier folio editions, as it includes the tract on Ireland and Bathurst's Calenda-rium Pastorale, &c. There is also a short Glossary.

The Faerie Queene. Disposed into twelue bookes, Fashioning XII. Morall vertues. London Printed for William Ponsonbie. 1596. 4°, A—Oo in eights.

The dedication to the Queen is on the back of the title, as in the first 4°. On Oo 8 recto occurs: "A Vision vpon the conceipt of the Faery Queene," and "Another of the same," the latter signed with Raleigh's initials, but both by him; and these are followed by six 6-line stanzas subscribed Hobynoll, and addressed To the learned Shepheard, which conclude the volume.

By S. Croxall.

Another Original Canto of Spencer: Design'd . . .

Quanto rectius hoc . . . Hor.

London; Printed for James Roberts . . . M.DCC.XIV. 4°, A—D in fours.

This second hoax, it is likely, did not prove so successful as the first. Spenser's imitator seems to have been equally ignorant of his style and his versification, or at least incapable of following either.

SPICER, ALEXANDER.

An Elegie on the Mvch Lamented Death of the Right Honorable Sir Arthur Chichester Knight, Lo. Neither Ames nor Herbert has drawn the necessary distinction between Stow's Summary and Stow's Summary Abridged, although these are entirely different works, the latter being always half the size of the former. Stow's Summaries are here described as octavos, but they are as often called duodecimos, and in order to mark the diminutive size of the Summaries Abridged they are here entered as 24mos. Herbert, p. 853, has noticed the confusion in the sizes, without suspecting the reason for it.—Note in Mr. H. Pyne's Catalogue.

The Abridgement of the English Chronicles . . . Augmented . . . by E. H. Gentleman . . . Imprinted at London for the Company of Stationers, 1618. 8°, chiefly black letter, A—Qq in eights, first and last leaves blank. Dedicated by Howes to Sir George Bolles Knight.

STUBBES, PHILIP.

The Anatomie of Abuses: Containing A Discouerie, or briefe Summarie of such Notable Vices and Corruptions, as now raigne in many Christian Countreyes of the Worlde: but (especially) in the Countrey of Ailgna . . . And now newly reuised and recognized, and augmented the third time by the same Author. [Quot.] ¶ Printed at London, by Richard Iones 12. October. 1584. [Col.] At London Printed by Richard Iones: dwellyng at the Signe of the Rose and the Crowne, neere vnto Holborne Bridge. 1584. 8°, A—R 4 in eights, R 4 with the colophon.

Halliwell, in 1857, imperfect after Q 8, £2, 4s. A perfect copy in the original vellum is in the possession of Mr. Alfred Wallis of Derby.

It has been said that Stubbes brought out two editions this year, a statement not unlikely in itself, especially as 1583 had exhausted two; but the fact seems to be that, as the title of the 1584 copy lately discovered bears the month as well as the year, and the colophon the year only, the inspection by two different persons of two copies, one deficient of the beginning, the other of the end, might have favoured the growth of such a notion.

The Anatomie of Abuses: . . . now newly reuised recognized, and augmented the third time by the same Author. . . . Printed at London, by Richard Iones 1585. 8°. A, 4 leaves: B—R 4 in eights, R 4 with the colophon.

4°, aa—hh 6 in eights, hh 6 with the colophon and device. Univ. Lib. Aberdeen.

This appears to have been intended to form part of the first-quoted publication, though it is not of the same edition. Probably both portions passed the press in 1522 and in 1531.

Rudimenta Artis Grammaticae per Jo. Vaux Scotum selecta et in duo divisa . . . Parisiis Ex officina Roberti Masselin. 1553. 4°, aa—ee 4 in eights: A—D in fours, A 4 blank.

This and the two preceding works by Vaux are bound together at King's College, Aberdeen. I have not met with them elsewhere, and have been thus led to describe them somewhat at length. There was evidently an earlier edition, not only of No. 2, but of No. 1. The words between brackets in the title of the latter are deficient in the Aberdeen copy, and are supplied from a very imperfect one sold among David Laing's books in December 1879, No. 3699.

London, Printed for John Nicholson, 1641. 4°, 4 leaves.

A Speech Made by Master Waller Esquire, in the Honorable House of Commons, concerning Episcopacie, whether it should be committed or rejected. Printed, 1641. July 3. 4°, 4 leaves.

An Honorable, And Learned Speech made By Mr. Waller in Parliament, Against the Prelates Innovations, False Doctrine, and Discipline; reproving the Perswasion of some Clergie-men to his Majestie of Inconveniencies: . . . Printed for Richard Smithers, 1641. 4°, 4 leaves.

From some coeval memoranda in a copy of Waller's Poems, 1645, sold among Mr. Way's books, July 1, 1881, it appears that these speeches are very unsatisfactorily given there, and that the same is the case with some of the poems. I have not compared the texts of the original 4th impressions of the former, but should imagine them to be very faulty.

[The Passionate Morris. London, by Richard Jones, 1593.] 4°. A, 2 leaves: B—T in fours. In prose. Ibid.

This copy wants the title, and no other is known. It is addressed, like the prior performance, to the Gentlewomen and others of England, but under the initial A. We have here evidently the book licensed to Jones, 5 Feb. 1592-3, as A pleasant fancie or merrie conceyt called the passionat morriss / daunst by a crue of Eight couple of wores, all meere Enimyres to love. It is to be regretted that of two such sprightly and curious tracts the writer is at present undiscovered.

A cancel for the entry in Bibl. Coll., 1st Series, p. 420.

AUBREY, JOHN, F.R.S.

Miscellanies, Viz. I. Day-Fatality. II. Local-Fatality. III. Ostenta. IV. Omens. V. Dreams. VI. Apparitions. VII. Voices. VIII. Impulses. . . . Collected by J. Aubrey, Esq; London: Printed for Edward Castle, near Scotland-Yard-Gate by Whitehall. 1696. 8°. Title and dedication to James Earl of Abingdon, 3 leaves: B—N 2 in eights. With a few cuts. B. M.

Aubrey refers to having spent some time in the preceding summer at Lavington, Lord Abingdon's seat, and speaks of his age as precluding him from going on with his half-finished Description of Wiltshire, which and other like matters he leaves to his younger countryman Mr. T. Tanner.

A portion of the first section was written, as Aubrey admits, by John Gibbon the Herald (ancestor of the Historian), and printed by him in 1678, and again in 1686 (see supra, 249). But Aubrey does not name the second edition, which was greatly enlarged. It is a remarkable circumstance that the modern editor of the Miscellanies, 1857, does not appear to have availed himself of the first impression, which contains matter omitted by him, as well as many differences for the better in the text. For the "Day-Fatality of Rome" Aubrey was indebted to Dr. Pell.

ERASMUS, DESIDERIUS.

A lytell booke of good maners . . . 1532.

Of this book Lowndes cites editions by De Worde in 1522, 1532, and 1534, by N. Bourman without date, and by John Waley in 1554. I have not seen any editions but those of 1532 and 1554; yet we must not dismiss too summarily that of 1534, which appears to have been issued on the 20th January, 1534-5, and cannot, if so, be identical with that of 1532, issued on the 10th September. Of the copy of 1522 I have my doubts.

An expositioun of the .xv. psalme made by mayster Erasmus of Rotherdame in whiche is full purely declared the pure and clene behauioure that ought to be in the pure Church of Chryst which is the multytude of all trewe Chrysten people. ¶ you be the lyght . . . Dedicated to Sir John Sidley of Ailesford, Kent, by the publisher, who speaks of having had the work "cleered from the barbarismes of antiquity."

One of the earliest European romances. It does not appear to have been noticed by critics that this is the parent book from which later writers derived those tales of sensational adventure and hair's breadth escapes, on which much of the plot of such Dramas as PERICLES OF TYRE turns and depends. No doubt, the author of the Pattern of Painful Adventures, the acknowledged foundation-story of PERICLES, went to Heliodorus.
